Flickr Baby is a simple GUI tool that will download images from Flickr.com based on a search string and then set them as wallpaper. The difference between Flickr Baby and other similar wallpaper tools like the Yahoo toolbar or the "Wallpaper" app is the fact that we also have full control over the search string and so we can for example choose photo sets from a specific month or

year. We also have built in search with a fuzzy search of course... You can search by the title of the photo if you know the exact name or you can use "suggested search tags" that are listed when viewing photos from a specific month. You can choose between different symbols for the search tag by clicking on the "symbol" button on top of the search bar. Every time you add a search string, the application will download the images (you can also save the images to the computer locally so you can later add them to your collection of wallpapers in your photo gallery or other apps). You can change the background wallpaper of your windows as often as you want using the default Windows tool or the wallpaper replacement tool that is included with this program. If you want to have the images as background for the toolbar or your desktop window you can specify the toolbar and desktop icons as well with the tool. We also have an option to use Geo-tags instead of the saved search strings. Currently we only support the geolocation of the photos with this option. P.S.: In the next version of the program we will add a themes section so you can change the colors of the GUI and the whole program. You can choose between different toolbars and so you can for example hide the text section of the program. In the next version we plan to add a section of user artwork...
